Antiques and Collecting
by Ralph & Terry Kovel

Q. I have an old quilt with a white background. Small dark specks from the cotton stuffing show through the white. Doesn't that indicate that it was made before 1790 and the invention of the cotton gin?

A. It is hard to retract a mistake that has been printed in a book. A quilt book written in 1929 suggested that the seeds in the cotton indicated an early quilt. Actually, cotton batting for quilts has been made in differing qualities for many years. Inexpensive batting was dirty and had some seeds. The cotton then was often homemade and not well cleaned. Specks are found in many 20th-century quilts. Polyester batting was made after 1960, and that is a reliable indication of age.

A new book, "Clues in the Calico," by Barbara Brackman (EPM Publications, 1003 Turkey Run Road, McLean, Va. 22101, $39.95) gives detailed information about how to date a quilt from the fabric, pattern, stitching, filling, dye, binding and other clues.

Q. My ice-cream scoop is marked "Buhlig Mfg. Co." When was it made?

A. Buhlig made ice-cream scoops from about 1900 to 1920.

Q. I have a perfume bottle with a stopper shaped like the head of a black person. On the label is "Golli Wogg." Can you tell me anything about Golli Wogg perfume?

A. The Golliwogg was a character in a book written by Florence K. Upton and Bertha Upton and published in the United States and London. It featured a black doll and five Dutch dolls. The Golliwogg became so popular, it was used as an advertising symbol. Many other products also pictured the character.

Q. I have a dinner service for four I want to fill in to make a service for eight. The dishes have a black silhouette of two colonial men at a table. On the back it says "Taylor, Smith, Taylor USA." How old are they?

A. Your dishes are known as "Taverne." It was a popular pattern made by Taylor, Smith, and Taylor of Chester, W. Va., in the 1930s. A similar pattern called "Silhouette" was made by the Crooksville China Company, of Crooksville, Ohio, and it pictured the two men and a dog. It is possible to assemble a full service for 12 including serving pieces and kitchen pieces in these patterns. Look for them at garage sales, flea markets and antiques and collector shows.

THE CHOPPING BLOCK
by Philomena Corradena

Today's suggestion uses chicken and watercress, but fillings can be varied. Try for instance, minced ham and sweet relish, chopped cucumber with just enough sour cream to bind it, smoked salmon and a bit of grated onion, thinly sliced ham and shredded lettuce, finely chopped hard-cooked egg bound with Dijon mustard and perhaps a dash of Tabasco sauce, two Norway herring sardines placed head to tail in a mayonnaise roll, with just a sprits of lemon juice.

Possibilities are limited only by your own taste and ingenuity, but you must use the thick, not the thin or ultra thin, Kavli.

CHICKEN-WATERCRESS ROLLUPS

18 to 20 Kavli thick-style crispbreads
¼ cup mayonnaise
2 to 4 teaspoons mustard
¼ to ¾ cup julienned cooked chicken
1 bunch watercress, washed and drained

Sprinkle both sides of crispbreads with warm water; arrange in single layer on moist cloth towel. Cover with another moist towel. Leave to soften about 10 minutes. Crispbreads should be softened just enough to be pliable. If necessary, spray on a little more water.

Mix mayonnaise and mustard. Spread on crispbreads. Place a few strips of chicken and two or three sprigs watercress across narrow end of each; gently roll up around chicken and watercress. Chill till ready to serve.

If you're on the hunt for new food ideas for entertaining, try nuts flavored with, of all things, instant bouillon.

PARMESAN PEANUTS

1 egg white
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
2 teaspoons chicken-flavor instant bouillon
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
2 cups dry-roasted peanuts

Preheat oven to 350F. In medium bowl, beat egg white with cheese, bouillon and garlic powder. Add peanuts, stirring until coated. Place on 15 X 10-inch jellyroll pan. Bake 10 minutes, stirring frequently until peanuts are crisp. Cool. Store tightly covered. Makes two cups.

Q. I really like Audrey Landers (ex-Afton on "Dallas"). Could you please tell me why she is going back to daytime television, if she is married, and what previous daytime soaps she was on? Perry F.

A. Ms. Landers will be on "Our Life To Live" for at least the next six months as a drug kingpin's daughter on the successful ABC soaper. Landers has been married to Donald Berkowitz for the past two years, but their relationship dates back several years prior to their marriage. Audrey finally sought out a role in New York. Since they have known one another, their relationship has been torrential, with Landers' success on "Dallas" and Berkowitz's production of "Sweet Storm" and "Tomorrows."

Q. I got such a kick at seeing Suzanne Pleshette in the final episode of "Newhart," the dream sequence. Will we be seeing more of this dynamite actress? Theo J.

A. Tea Solitaire is set to play the lead in a CBS television movie titled "The Queens of Mean." This biographic flick is on the life and times of self-declared hotel queen, Leona Helmsley.

Q. Is it true that Marlon Brando's next motion picture is a comedy? Eileen B.

A. Yes. Brando teams up with Matthew Broderick in "The Freshman."

Q. I have a sister with a weird sense of humor, so I never know if she's kidding me or not, and I think she's kidding me now when she says we had a United States president who was once a male model. Say no, and I'll show your answer to my sister. Helen K.

A. Sorry. I have to say you. Gerald R. Ford modeled while he was at law school. Unmercifully cute in the family. Daughter Susan once did duties for Subaru and the ex-pres's actor son, Stephen (formerly on "Young & the Restless") has done some.

Q. Is it true that Victoria Principal is trying to get back on "Dallas" because a lot of things she wanted didn't work out? And if she did come back, how would that affect Bobby's (Patrick Duffy) new marriage? Jeannie B.

A. There've been rumors that Victoria was rethinking her decision to leave the series and return just as Duffy and others have over the years. However, the last we heard, she's denied all. That leaves Bobby's marriage undisturbed.

Q. Why do you always have something about Madonna in this column? Nancy T.

A. Because readers always have questions about her.

Q. A reviewer on TV said that Nick Nolte and Eddie Murphy looked mad at each other in the movie and didn't talk to each other while making "Another 48 Hours." I thought they were friends. What happened? Charlie C.

A. Maybe they saw the rushes (the showing of each day's shooting while a film is in production), and realized they were working on a disappointing sequel (which took eight years to come together) to their first flick together.

Seriously, the reviewers have said the two had little to say to each other as characters, not as Eddie and Nick. Offscreen, they remain good friends, but don't look for "48 Hours III," even in another eight years.

Q. Did Jane Pauley finally comment on how she really feels about being pushed off the "Today" show on NBC by Deborah Norville? Cindy H.

A. Jane has been perfectly civilized through the whole situation, insisting she bore no ill will to anyone. However, she did admit her husband, cartoonist Gary Trudeau, ("Doonesbury") advised her to stir up a fuss, but she declined to do so.

Paint & Household
by Bob D'Angelo

I have received many requests for my checklist, "How To Choose a Contractor," and would like to take the opportunity to reprint the following letter from an extraordinary woman that accompanied the request.

Dear Bob: Please send me a copy of "Contractor Check List." Enclosed is a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

I am a wheelchair full-time (polio) and live alone in the country. I have successfully remodeled my bathroom for a wheelchair (with a unique shower design), designed a small wheelchair kitchen, worked out plans for two decks which serve as ramps, planned a wheelchair ramp, had installed two solar panels, and designed a solar space. Together, they provide all my heat on a sunny day between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Now I have to get a new roof, and since that is very confusing, I would find your checklist very helpful, I'm sure.

I also designed a dog run which is attached to a porch so my dog can get inside if I'm away. My dog is a Golden Labrador especially trained to California as a service dog. She pulls my wheelchair, picks up dropped items, turns light switches, gets my mail in bad weather, and wears a distinctive blue and gold backpack to identify her as a service dog. She understands more than 100 commands. She's also a great buddy!

I also spread the word on accessibility to business. The federal government allows a tax credit to any business which makes a modification to accommodate individuals with a handicap. Help me spread the word! Let's fix the world so everyone is free, even if they don't have maximum athletic ability.

P.S. I also helped design a mounting ramp for wheelchairs for the local therapeutic horseback riding program. I'm also a rider, Joyce Oliver, Richmond, Ind.

Q. The fiberboard ceiling in our cottage was stained due to water damage. I've painted over three times, and yet the stain shows through. P.K.

A. Paint alone does not have the opacity to hide water stains. What is needed is a stain killer primer such as B.I.N. (a Zinsser product). This is a quick-drying (15 minutes), alcohol solution primer which may require more than one coat to completely hide the stain. When doing small areas with B.I.N., I generally use disposable brushes as it can be difficult to clean up.
